

Important: Please read!

This course meets in person at the UNH campus in Manchester (room P456). UNH policy is that courses should be delivered only in the scheduled mode of instruction, so there is no Zoom option for attendance. If UNH changes its course modality policies due to negative COVID trends, the course will change in keeping with any new mandates.

For spring 2023, UNH Manchester requires a valid Wildcat Pass to enter the building, but the use of masks is optional. These rules are subject to change and any changes will be sent to students, staff, and faculty by UNH President James Dean and UNHM Dean Mike Decelle. Read your UNH email regularly to stay current on UNH policies. Students who are ill may request a medical accommodation to UNH and course-specific attendance policies by contacting UNH Manchester Assistant Dean of Student Success Lisa Enright (Lisa.Enright@unh.edu) or, on the Durham Campus, the office for Student Accessibility Services. All Powerpoint slides, readings, and any other materials will be available on Canvas to enable students granted a medical accommodation to remain up to date with course content.

CA 527. History of Film

Spring Semester 2023

Meetings: Thursday 1-4:50, P456

Instructor: Dr. Jeffrey Klenotic, P481

Office Hours: T/Th 5-6 PM & by appointment

Contact: Phone: (603) 641-4130, Email: jeffrey.klenotic@unh.edu

Instructor Availability: Please feel free to drop in or schedule a time to meet with me (in person or via Zoom) during office hours. You can also set up an appointment outside of office hours if that works better for you. The best way to reach me is by email (use your UNH email account only). I can also be reached via Canvas messaging or by phone. I will make every effort to respond within 24 hours.

Course Description: This course surveys key events, representative films, influential filmmakers, major film movements, and defining modes of film exhibition that mark the history of motion pictures from 1945 into the early 21st century. The emphasis is on feature-length narrative, but films in other styles are occasionally presented. In addition to providing access to major works of film art, the course facilitates historical and geographical understanding of vital contexts – industrial, social, cultural, political, national, aesthetic, and technological – that have shaped the medium’s development since World War II. Students gain specialized understanding of cinema history as well as general knowledge of broad patterns in U.S. and world history.

Course Outcomes: After completing this course, students will be able to:

- 1) Identify key events, films, filmmakers, and film movements that define cinema history since 1945.
- 2) Appreciate the global diversity and range of styles encompassed within film history.
- 3) Understand how film history intersects with a wide range of other historical contexts.
- 4) Explain the major changes that have occurred in the U.S. film industry since 1945.
- 5) Perform basic professional programming practices common in cinema arts institutions.

Course Attributes: CA 527 fills one of two required “Area B: Organization, History and Policy” courses in the Communication Arts Major. It can also be used to satisfy one of the two “Area II” requirements in the CA Cinema and Media Arts Option, and it may count toward the CA Minor as well.

Course Credit Hours: 4 credits. This syllabus reflects the federal definition of a credit hour. Federal regulations define the amount of effort (including attending/reviewing lectures, doing readings, viewing films, completing assignments, preparing presentations, etc.) students should commit to their classes as follows: 3 hours of work per week per credit over a 15 week semester. The expected effort for a semester-long 4-credit course is 12 hours/week (4 credits x 3 hours/credit).

Course Website: This course uses a Canvas website. If you do not have a UNH username and password, contact the UNHM IT office to set up an account. Since Canvas has its own messaging system, students may find it useful to set Canvas notification settings so that messages are forwarded to their UNH email accounts. This ensures that any messages sent via Canvas are received in both channels.

Required Textbook: Kristin Thompson & David Bordwell, Film History: An Introduction, 3rd edition, ISBN: 9780073386133 [identified as "FH" in the course outline and reading schedule]. This book is essential for exams. To lower expenses, you may rent or buy a used copy. Digital editions or hard copies work equally well. You are strongly encouraged to shop around online for the best price. There are also 4th and 5th editions of the book that may be used, but be aware that pagination may differ from what is listed in the course schedule. Two copies of the 3rd edition of the book have also been placed on three-day reserve at the UNH Manchester library.

Additional Readings: Film History provides our core reading, but additional materials have been made available on Canvas. To access these additional readings, CLICK ON THE TITLE as it is listed in the course schedule and you will be taken to the reading. You are responsible for all assigned readings. To maximize learning, you may find it useful to do the readings both before and after watching the movie. Reading the material in advance helps you to see historical references and trends in the film. Reading the material a second time afterward enables you to recall scenes from the film that may be mentioned in the reading.

Class Format: Each class will begin promptly at 1 PM and end at 4:50 PM. Every effort will be made to provide a full fifteen-minute break every class so that you can stretch your legs and grab a snack. We may also at times take two ten-minute breaks. The course as a whole mixes lectures, in-class screenings, home screenings (using UNH Kanopy and/or other streaming services), readings, and discussions. Typically, the first part of class will be for discussing the prior week’s films. This will be followed by a presentation of new material, along with a new screening. The films have been chosen for historical and artistic value not entertainment value; give every film your full attention regardless of whether you “like” it.

Class Screenings: You are required to view all assigned films, unless these are designated "optional" viewing. I strongly encourage you to keep a notebook to record your thoughts and observations about each film, as this will be useful for exams. During screenings, focus your full attention on the film. To avoid distracting others, students are not permitted to put their feet up onto the seat in front of them. For the same reason, eating is not permitted during screenings.

Class Conduct: Film has the power to trigger many responses, and individuals can evaluate a film in different ways. One benefit of studying film historically is that though we may disagree on a film's entertainment value, we can always learn something about history from every film we see. Active participation during lecture and discussion is expected and encouraged. The main requirement is that you contribute informed comments and pertinent questions, keep an open mind, and give attention and respect to the thoughts expressed by others in the class, especially those with whom you may disagree. It is important to let everyone have a chance at speaking and presenting ideas in this course – in fact its small size is designed for that. It is a rare opportunity in which everyone's point of view matters. Productive discussions are based on arguments that rely on evidence (e.g., from films we watch, other cultural artifacts, expert opinions, historical factors, etc.). This course is fully aligned with UNH's code of conduct, which seeks to make both the in-person and online classroom a welcoming space for diverse voices in the discussion of intellectual ideas and research. As part of this culture of respect, please refrain from making assumptions about other people's identities, beliefs, ideas, etc. Threatening or harassing behavior will not be tolerated. For any and all class activities that may need to occur online, please use netiquette when using Zoom communication tools with your classmates and instructor.

Class Attendance and Lateness: Students are expected to arrive on time, stay for the entire session, and attend every class. Attendance will be taken at the start of each class, and again after the intermission break. Students will be permitted to arrive late twice throughout the semester. Additional latenesses beyond two will count as half-absences. Because matters of family, work, health, and wellness can impact each of us, often suddenly and unexpectedly, students will be permitted to miss two classes (or four half-absences) without penalty. For each half absence beyond the limit, an intermediate grade is deducted from the final course grade (e.g., a B+ drops to a B). Students who have a fever or otherwise feel ill should not attend class. However, if you must miss class, please notify me in advance if possible so that I am aware of your situation. It is your responsibility to make up work missed due to absences on your own time. Students who miss class will still be expected to submit assignments on time. To ensure all students are treated equally and fairly, accommodations or exceptions to this policy are made based only on documented evidence. Should you need to request a medical accommodation to UNH and course-specific attendance policies, contact UNHM Assistant Dean of Student Success Lisa Enright (Lisa.Enright@unh.edu) or for Durham students, the office for Student Accessibility Services.

Class Recordings: Unless required as part of a student accommodation plan, class sessions for this course will not be recorded. In the event that such recordings become necessary, your voice or image may be captured and by enrolling in this course you are consenting to such recording for these purposes. UNH and Zoom have FERPA-compliant agreements in place to protect the security and privacy of UNH Zoom accounts. Any recorded sessions will be available for educational use only by students enrolled in the class and recordings may not be shared with others outside of class. If necessary, recordings would be accessible via the "Media Gallery" in Canvas. There may be a delay of several days before videos post.

Electronic Devices: During class, we will not use any media technology or internet platform unless required for a class activity. This policy follows section 04:213 of the Student Handbook: "Students may not use cell phones, PDAs, pagers, digital music players, laptops and other electronic devices during class unless designated by the course instructor. If use of any of these items is permitted by the course instructor, these items are not allowed to be used for non-class activities. If you, the student, have a learning disability that requires the use of one of these items, you must provide evidence from the Disability Services for Students office, to inform the course instructor of this situation so that he or she can accommodate your use. Also, if you need to leave a cell phone on for an emergency situation, you should inform the course instructor at the beginning of the class session as well as keep the phone on in a silent mode, so as not to disrupt the course” (p. 23).

Grades: In keeping with UNH’s grading system, an “A” indicates “excellent” performance, “B” indicates “superior” performance, “C” indicates “competent, acceptable” performance, “D” indicates “marginal” performance, and “F” indicates “failing” performance. Intermediate grades (+/-) indicate that work is better in some areas of evaluation than in other areas. Grades will be determined using the following scale:

A (100-92); A- (91-90); B+ (89-88); B (87-82); B- (81-80); C+ (79-78);
C (77-72); C- (71-70); D+ (69-68); D (67-62); D- (61-60); F (59 and below)

Course Requirements: Students will complete two exams (take-home, open book) covering all lectures, discussions, readings, and required film screenings. In addition, students will submit one paper (minimum of 2,000 words) or video essay (minimum of 5 minutes) that is due at semester’s end. Students will also work in small groups to make class presentations, lead discussions, and develop screening reports relating to historical periods and films. Detailed guidelines for each assignment will be discussed in class and distributed through Canvas. To pass the course, all course requirements must be completed. The due date and weighted value for each assignment is as follows:

March 23 – Exam 1 (25%) Due by 1PM (exam availability begins March 9)

May 4 – Exam 2 (25%) Due by 1PM (exam availability begins April 27)

May 11 – Research Project (25%) Due by 1PM.

March 9, March 30, April 6 (As Assigned) – Group Oral Presentation (25%)

How to submit assignments on Canvas: For work submitted on Canvas, Microsoft Word (.doc/x) or Adobe Portable Document Format (.pdf) documents are required. If you create your work using some other software, such as Apple Pages or Google Docs, use the “save as” or “export” function to save your file as a Word (.doc/x) or PDF document before uploading. Files with extensions other than .doc/x or .pdf will be considered late. Files that are corrupted or that cannot be opened will also be considered late. To upload your file, click on the “assignments” button in the Canvas menu and select the appropriate assignment. Then browse to your file, attach it, and hit submit. It is the student’s responsibility to confirm that the instructor has received their work. Shortly after the due date, if you see a zero (0) for the assignment in your grades, this informs you that your work has not been received or has been received but cannot be opened. This means the late paper policy (described below) is now in effect. After you have successfully uploaded your late paper, this “0” will revert to a hyphen (-) to let you know that your work has been received. Once I have finished evaluating your work, this hyphen will change to a new number that reflects your final score on the assignment. [Note: students who opt to do a video essay will have to have the file format and/or video streaming platform for submitting their work approved by me in advance.]

Policy on Late Work: Exams are designed to ensure that every student has an equal chance to demonstrate their mastery of a common set of course materials and learning outcomes by completing their exam within a set timeframe. Submitting exams on time is therefore essential to achieving shared learning outcomes and treating all students equitably. To ensure fairness and encourage timely learning outcomes, exams submitted up to 7 days late will be penalized a full 7 points (e.g., an exam submitted anytime after the due date but before the following Thursday at 1 PM that scores a 95 will drop to 88). Exams submitted after 7 days but before 14 days late will be penalized a full 14 points (e.g., 95 drops to 81).

Papers are designed to afford you an opportunity to demonstrate personal mastery of research topics by integrating scholarly materials into your own voice and perspective. While submitting papers on time is important for ensuring that all work is evaluated equitably, individualized learning outcomes can still be fully achieved if the work is submitted late. Therefore, the penalty on late papers is less strict. Papers submitted after the given due date will be penalized 1 point per day up to a maximum of 14 days (e.g., a paper due at 1 pm on May 12 that is turn in on May 20 by 1pm will receive an 8 point deduction). After 14 days, late exams and papers will not be accepted unless there are documented reasons to excuse late work or where a course grade of “incomplete” is warranted. If you think your work is going to be late, please let me know beforehand. Please know that this policy is not intended as punitive. Instead, it seeks to motivate students to manage time effectively and to ensure that each student's work is treated equally and fairly. It also is a way for me to be transparent in informing students about grading practices in the course.

UNH Policy on Academic Honesty: All student work must comply with UNH policy on academic honesty as found in the UNH student handbook (pp. 31-33). Violation of this policy will result, minimally, in a failing grade for this course. Plagiarism includes using someone else’s ideas or words without giving them credit. If you take language and/or ideas from a book, article, or website without telling your reader, you have plagiarized. It can be done consciously or unconsciously; both are unacceptable. Plagiarism also includes submitting someone else’s work as if it were your own, as in obtaining a paper from another student or from the Internet, or paying someone to write a paper on your behalf. Plagiarism also includes self-plagiarism, which is submitting a paper or parts of a paper written for another class as if it were original to this class. Another form of plagiarism is the use of AI software writing programs to generate language and content. Unless otherwise specified, the use of Automated Writing Tools, including chatGPT and similar artificial intelligence (AI) tools, is strictly prohibited, even when properly attributed. The use of automated writing tools is considered plagiarism (as defined by SRRR 9.3) and will be handled in accordance with existing policy. If you are unsure about what does or does not count as plagiarism, please consult with me and/or review the UNH policy on academic honesty. Students should also review the UNH plagiarism tutorial for additional guidance on how to properly paraphrase and cite sources. Students should know that UNH uses “Turn-it-in.” This service searches the Internet and other databases to compare student essays against sources found online and other papers stored in the database.

Evaluation Criteria for Student Work: Exams, papers, and video essays will be evaluated for the quality of their *thinking, content, and form. Excellent work will have ideas that are:

- Clearly and consistently focused on a research question and central thesis that are informed by original and critical thinking about the topic
- Fully explained, coherently organized, and logically connected to each other in support of a central thesis
- Developed incrementally from point to point using smooth, cohesive transitions
- Substantively and accurately rooted in course readings and outside scholarly research as called for by the assignment
- Consistently supported by specific and well-developed details, reasons, examples, evidence, descriptions, or other forms of explication and proof
- Presented using an original title (in the case of papers and video essays) and framed by a compelling introduction that includes a specific research question and by an effective conclusion that reinforces unity by answering the research question with a strong summation of the thesis
- Nearly error-free in terms of spelling, grammar, punctuation, capitalization, and paragraphing and, in the case of video essays, exceptional in technical mechanics and audiovisual exposition.
- Accurately cited using a standard reference system (e.g., APA or MLA)

For each assignment, you will receive comments in the essay's margins (click "view feedback" to read all the comments). Feedback on "thinking" is noted by comments relating to the research question, thesis, logical and focused development of ideas, unified reasoning from paragraph to paragraph, use of examples, etc. Comments on the accuracy, detail, rigor, and depth of an essay's use of course readings and outside research give feedback on essay "content." Comments on spelling, grammar, punctuation, proofreading, editing, etc. present feedback on essay "form."

Center for Academic Enrichment (CAE): Provides services and resources to support academic success.

Accessibility Services: If you have a documented disability or believe you may have a disability that requires accommodations, contact Student Accessibility Services. If you think you have a disability requiring accommodations, you must register with UNHM Disability Services Office Coordinator Jenessa Zurek at (603) 641-4383, jenessa.zurek@unh.edu, or in the Student Services Suite, Room P410H.

Mental Health Support Services: In partnership with The Mental Health Center of Greater Manchester, UNHM offers consultation visits on a walk-in basis and via tele-health appointments. Services include:

- Free confidential screening & consultation with a licensed mental health therapist.
- Referrals to mental health or substance misuse treatment, and assistance in understanding how to afford additional treatment (with or without insurance!) or find free services.

You may email Alexis Garcia Alexis.Garcia@unh.edu to make an appointment to meet with a counselor. For more information about counseling services/availability, visit the UNHM Student Wellness website.

If you wish to connect to counseling services directly, you may do so by contacting Greater Manchester Mental Health Center at (603) 668-4111. If you or someone you know is experiencing a mental health or substance misuse crisis, please contact the Mobile Crisis Response Team (MCRT) at (800) 688-3544.

Title IX Confidentiality and Mandatory Reporting: The University of New Hampshire at Manchester and its community are committed to assuring a safe and productive educational environment for all students and for the university as a whole. To this end, the University requires UNH faculty and staff members, hall directors, resident assistants (RAs), and other students employed in leadership, supervisory, and/or mentoring roles [such as Peer Assistant Leaders (PALs), Mentor Ambassadors for Transfer Engagement (MATEs) and the Center for Academic Enrichment (CAE) mentors and tutors] to report to the University's Title IX Coordinator (Nadine Petty: <https://www.unh.edu/diversity-inclusion/person/nadine-petty>) any incidents of sexual violence, domestic violence, stalking and harassment shared by students regardless of whether it occurs on or off the Manchester campus. If you wish to speak to a confidential support service provider who does not have this reporting responsibility because their discussions with clients are subject to legal privilege, you can find a list of confidential crisis centers here. Please contact the crisis center that services the town where you live. For more information about what happens when you report, how the University considers your requests for confidentiality once a report is made to the Title IX Coordinator, your rights and report options at UNH (including anonymous report options) please visit this website.

Course Disruption: In the event of a major campus emergency, course requirements, deadlines and grading percentages are subject to change when necessitated by revised course delivery, semester calendar or other circumstances. Information about changes can be obtained via Canvas or by emailing me. If the course is not able to meet face-to-face students should continue to check Canvas for announcements and updates.
