

ENGLISH 301: INTRODUCTION TO COLLEGE READING AND WRITING
SPRING 2002

INSTRUCTOR: SUSAN DIENER

HOME PHONE: 224-9433

E-MAIL: susandiener@hotmail.com

AVAILABILITY:

I have to be at UNHM some time each week. I will be available to meet by appointment. You can call me at home or leave a message for me at the university if you need to contact me for any reason. You can also e-mail me at the above address.

TEXTS:

Cavitch, David Ed. The Springfield Reader. Boston: Bedford Books of St. Martin's Press, 1997.

Daniel, David, Chris Fauske, Peter Galeno, Debbie Mael. Take Charge of Your Writing. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 2001.

Hacker, Diana. A Writer's Reference. Third edition. New York: Bedford Books of St. Martin's Press, 1995.

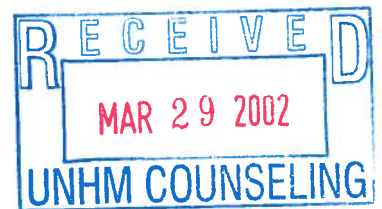

COURSE MATERIALS:

3-ring binder or comparable with section dividers for log, homework, graded papers, papers in progress, research project and class notes. IMPORTANT: Keep all your work. You might be asked to add to something you are working on and you will be required to create a portfolio at the end of the semester which you will not be able to do unless you keep all papers, both graded and ungraded.

Your own, or access to, a quality dictionary.

GOALS:

- To teach basic writing skills, both higher and lower order skills
- To build good reading skills and provide opportunities to practice them
- To teach metacognitive skills (an awareness of your process of learning)
- To teach summarizing and paraphrasing
- To introduce library and research skills
- To introduce different views on a variety of subjects
- To introduce the culture and expectations of the academic community
- To teach the transferring of skills from this course to other college courses
- To foster intellectual curiosity
- To build confidence about being college students

OBJECTIVES:

- Students will be able to use Standard English to write a coherent paragraph that has a topic sentence, primary supporting ideas, and supporting detail.
- Students will be able to annotate texts in a meaningful way.
- Students will be able to write a concise summary
- Students will be able to paraphrase material from the textbook and from library research
- Students will be able to identify the main parts of a sentence and be able to model his/her own sentence on good examples; he/she will learn how to use a handbook.

- Students will learn and apply active reading strategies
- Students will develop metacognitive skills including activating prior learning, monitoring comprehension, reflecting on learning.
- Students will be able to write short papers (2-5 pages) on assigned topics
- Students will be able to select a topic for research, find secondary sources in the library, summarize these sources, evaluate these sources and create a bibliography in MLA format.
- Students will be able to contribute to writing workshop groups.
- Students will work with a tutor to improve his or her writing skills.
- Students will expand his/her vocabulary.
- Students will set short term and long term reading and writing goals.
- Students will monitor and evaluate his/her progress in the course regarding reading, writing, and adjustment to college.

To facilitate reading and writing development students will keep a reading/writing log in which he/she writes reading responses and other assigned entries. All these entries along with all other papers will be saved to create an end of the semester portfolio.

ATTENDANCE:

Attendance is important for many reasons. I expect you to attend classes and conferences. Please call me if you are unable to attend class or a conference with me. Likewise, if you have an appointment with a tutor and are unable to attend, please notify the tutor or leave a message will in advance at the Learning Center (641-4113). Unless you have worked out a plan with me, you will not be allowed to make up in-class writing assignments and/or tests. If you miss more than 3 classes and/or conferences, your final grade will be lowered by 5 points.

GRADING:

Your grade is based on the following:

- 30% The average of grades for all writing assignments done outside of class (graded essays)
- 20% The average of grades for other writing assignments, including quizzes, tests, specific writing exercises, my assessment of your preparation for class, class participation, conferences and work-shopping.
- 20% Completed reading/writing log (homework).
- 30% Completed and revised portfolio (completed information about the portfolio will be distributed later).

These are general guidelines, although the schedule is subject to change depending on the weather, class needs, etc.

Class activities will also include some in-class writing and various reading and writing exercises, as well as writing workshops, academic skill workshops, very brief student presentations, and occasional conferencing.

Quizzes will be random, will be based on the reading due that week, and may be announced or unannounced. There will be a midterm exam; part take-home, part in-class. The final exam is the portfolio.

HOMEWORK:

Homework is an integral part of the college process. In many classes homework is not collected or graded but is given for personal academic growth. In other classes homework consists of a few papers done over the course of the semester which will become your grade for the class. In this course homework is required. You will be responding to literature, writing about the writing process and writing major essays. You need to turn homework in on time. I will not take late homework and all major essays will lose half a grade for each day the paper is late.

Homework can be typed or handwritten.

Reading responses:

For each reading you do out of The Springfield Reader you will write a reading response.

Reading responses are not formal essays. They are a way of making you read actively, think about the material, and prepare for class discussion.

Reading responses will be checked according to the following criteria:

- Check-plus: at least one ½ page or more of thoughtful, careful consideration of the reading material. (¾ of a page if it is handwritten)
- Check: nearly ½ page that indicates that you read and thought about the assignment and what you are writing about relates in some way to the reading.
- Check-minus: less than ½ a page, not very well thought out.

Think of reading responses as your opportunity to formulate the ideas you would share if you were having a conversation about the reading.

Some possible ways of approaching a reading response:

- What previous knowledge do you have about the topic?
- What particular ideas or passages did you think were interesting?
- What did you agree or disagree with and why?
- What would you tell someone about this reading if you were talking about it?
- How does the reading material relate to what you are studying in this class or other classes?
- How does the reading material relate to other subjects you are studying?
- How does this reading make you think about the topic in a way you have never considered before?

Please take reading responses seriously. Even though you are not given a letter grade, the sum total of check grading will factor into your overall grade. However, as I noted above, they are not essays themselves, so don't make yourself crazy about doing this.

Lastly, please do not write summaries of these readings. I want more evaluation than just a restatement of the reading. If you have problems with this we can discuss it more at a later date.

CONFERENCING PLAN:

Take charge of your writing - writing

Date	Read	Read/Write Logs	What will be covered
✓ January 31			First day of class
✓ February 5	Reader pg. 109-119 Angelou	Response	Academic reputation & insurance
✓ February 7	Chapter 1 Writing	Daniel 11 Lamott 13 O'Brien 17 Write a paragraph describing what you have observed about one of these person's writing style.	Who are you as a Writer?
✓ February 12	Reader Orwell 148	Response	Paragraphs
✓ February 14	Chapter 4 Writing	Daniel 79 Goldberg 80 Talent 83 What kind of prewriting do you think these authors used and why?	Prewriting but order
✓ February 19	Reader Ehrenreich 58 Fasteau 73	Response
✓ February 21	Chapter 5 Writing	Updike 98 Marius 102 Matheson 106 Discuss the language in one of these essays. Why does the author use the language they do and what does it do for the subject they are writing about?	Writing
✓ February 26	Reader Didion 97	Response Paper 1 due
February 28	Chapter 6 Writing	King 124 Hale 125 Heker 131 If you had to rewrite one of these essays what would you change and why?	Rewriting

March 5	Reader White 16	Response
March 7	Chapter 2 Writing	Staples 32 Copeland 35 Kincaid 40 Who do you think the audience for these essays are and why?	Audience
March 12	Reader Woolf 125 Steele 43	Response
March 14
March 19 & 21	Spring	Break	Enjoy!
March 26	Chapter 3 Writing	Van Gelder 53 Harjo 55 Bambara 59 What are the purposes of these essays? Explain. Paper 2 Due	Purpose
March 28	Reader Whitehead 33 Carter	Response
April 2	Chapter 7 Writing	Hec Suh 166 Kilbourne 168 Chopin 173 Summarize one of these stories and explain why it had meaning for you.	Summary
April 4	Reader Ephron 5 Olsen 162	Response
April 9	Chapter 8 Writing	Zinn 190 Baker 191 Carver 195 Explain the biases that these authors have and how you know.	Evaluating
April 11	Reader	Response

	Tisdale 137 Steffan 22
April 16	Chapter 9 Writing	Baldwin 227 Sakamoto 231 Baker 233 Boyle 235 Genesis 6 239 What types of analysis are each of these and how do you know?	Analysis
April 18	Reader Tan 119 Updike 1	Response Paper 3 due
April 23	Chapter 11 Writing		Research
April 25	Reader Walker 50	Response
April 30	Reader Sanders 68 Ackerman 82	Response
May 2	Reader Gates 145	Response
May 7	Chapter 10 Writing	Von Oech 251 Trask 256 King, Jr. 262 What are each of these authors trying to persuade of you of and how do you know? Paper 4 Due	Persuasion
April 9 MAY	Reader Rodriguez	Response
April 14 MAY	Writing Part III, page 307

April 16
MAY

d. L. o. p. o. f. f. p. o. r. t. 1. 0